Post-Operative Instructions Intravitreal Injection After Care

You may experience any or all of these symptoms
after an injection:

- Discomfort
- Tearing
- Swelling of the eyelid
- Redness
- Blurred vision – you may not notice improvement in your vision right away and this is normal.
- Sensation that you have something in the eye
- Drainage – Red/Yellow – a little blood on the eye patch when you remove it is normal.
- Immediately after injection you may have redness of the white of the eye for 3-4 days.
- You may notice black strings, odd shapes, or blobs in the vision of you post-operative eye.

For your comfort:

- Cool or warm compresses
- Do not rub your eye. You could scratch your eye resulting in corneal abrasion.
- Tylenol for comfort

You may experience some redness, swelling, and soreness. It should be relatively minor. If any of the symptoms become worse, please call our office.
